Dr. Christopher Kilmartin, Ph.D., Professor of Psychology, University of Mary Washington, Fredericksburg, Virginia

Introduction: Dr. Gar Kellom, MFFN Board of Directors

Dr. Christopher Kilmartin is a college professor, author, stand-up comedian, actor, playwright, consultant and professional psychologist. Dr. Kilmartin is the author of The Masculine Self and co-wrote The Pain Behind the Mask: Overcoming Masculine Depression. His keynote focuses on how male socialization impacts changing roles for men and women in the family and workplace.

Housing for Fathers Across the Spectrum: From Supportive Housing to Homeownership (Alexander Room, 1st Floor) Programs that stabilize housing for fathers are able to improve parenting skills and outcomes for children. With this premise in mind, presenters will describe a continuum of services from supportive and rental housing to first-time homeownership. Presenters will share program successes and challenges for a rental housing program directed at fathers aged 18-25 who do not have physical custody of their children. Presenters will also discuss the current housing market, the foreclosure crisis, and the impact on low-income home buyers, including opportunities available through the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency. Achieving successful homeownership can play a key role in the financial wellbeing of Minnesota families. Presenters: Paul Houdek, Community Neighborhood Housing Services, St. Paul; Patrick Morley, Project for Pride in Living, Minneapolis.

Reaching Fathers and Families Through Your Local Schools (Clarke Room, 1st Floor) By working with local schools and Head Start programs, local agencies can reach the fathers and families they are trying to impact. Strong Fathers-Strong Families has worked with thousands of fathers and children by partnering with local schools and Head Starts. This workshop will demonstrate proven methods of working effectively with both schools and families in those schools. Presenter: J. Michael Hall, Strong Fathers-Strong Families, Fort Worth, Texas.

Strategies for Working with Young & Expectant Fathers (Bell Room, 1st Floor) In this interactive, practical session presenters will cover strategies for recruiting young (and expectant!) fathers into parenting programs, teaching child development and pregnancy prevention, and establishing good interpersonal relationships with young men. Also addressed will be how to work with young moms to engage young fathers, and working with young couples in a way that keeps fathers engaged. Presenters work in various settings addressing the needs of high risk males and young fathers. Join this conversation about what works, ask questions, and share ideas about serving young fathers. Presenters: JP Renquist and Nate Kesti, Boyz II Dadz, Duluth; Colin Moore and Tom Anderson, Catholic Charities, St. Paul; John Jackson, TAPP Program, Broadway Arts & Tech High School, Minneapolis.

Men’s Work that Leads to Showing Up for Kids: An Experiential Session for Men and Women (First American Room, 2nd Floor) Come to this workshop for reflection and challenge through a shared journey into cultivating male clarity and strength. Using highly refined circle processes, men and women will explore their own socialization by practicing simple tools to illuminate patterns and return consciousness into our beliefs about manhood. We’ll watch an abridged version of the documentary “Journeyman” as a way to enter a conversation on male intergenerational healing. We’ll practice a process for gaining and communicating clarity and accountability in a powerful male way. Finally, we’ll talk about the role of eldership and practice blessing each other as an essential part of becoming whole. Presenters: Charlie Borden, Boys to Men Mentoring Network of Minnesota and MirrorMan Films (Producer of Journeyman Film), St. Paul; Dr. Michael Obatsz, Author, Professor and Co-Producer of Journeyman Film, St. Paul; Jon Harper, Adventures in Fathering and MFFN Past President.
American Men: Promoting and Impacting Healthier Lives of African American Men (Weidner Room, 1st Floor) Project Imani facilitates the education and empowerment of African-American males. Through this discussion, African-American males are challenged to confront the never-ending journey of manhood and responsibility of creating lives by design, not default. Indulging into questions for stakeholders interested in reducing pathologies which exist among African-American males: (1) When will we create solutions to reduce the likelihood our boys will grow up to be “absent fathers”? (2) What are the short-term and long-term implications of more African-American males going to prison vs. college? (3) How many African-American males will be killed before we begin to implement community-based solutions? Presenters: LaRone Greer, Darin McGowan, and Deonta Perry, Project Imani, Otsego.

Afraid to Truly Love, Addressing Relationship Challenges in Fatherless Children (Clarke Room, 1st Floor) “Why did Daddy leave me?” This is a prevalent question for millions of children struggling with fear of abandonment, a real and growing mental health concern. Adults who grew up in fatherless households may struggle in relationships and marriages due to inner wounds and trapped emotions which may cause men and women to overindulge in everything from alcohol to sex, develop personality traits that drive people away, or become inattentive at home. Fear of abandonment can result in physical and emotional abuse and affects the development of healthy relationships between men & women or fathers & their children. Learn how to discuss these issues in education groups and fatherhood programs. Presenter: Dr. Randell Turner, ICF International, Red Lion, PA.

Co-Parenting for Never-Married Families (Bell Room, 1st Floor) Almost 40 percent of children are born outside of marriage in the U.S., and many of these families go through the family court system. Yet most family courts and court services are geared to divorced parents. Learn about Hennepin County’s plan to create a Co-Parent Court for unmarried parents using the “problem solving court” model. Hear about a co-parent education program designed for unmarried parents as part of this project, and lessons learned in the first pilot of this material. Presenters: Judge Bruce Peterson, Hennepin Co. District Court; Rose Allen, University of Minnesota Extension, Farmington; T.J. Jones and Nekeisia Booyer, Gateway Project, Minneapolis.

Beyond the Bars: Incarcerated Fathers and Child Support’s Changing Culture (Alexander Room, 1st Floor) Much has changed in how child support cases are handled since Minnesota’s policy for arrears prevention and management began in 2007. At the state level, a Child Support Liaison works with the Department of Corrections to address barriers and offer support. Meanwhile, many counties have developed their own creative, often father-friendly, policies to help low-income families and incarcerated parents. This session examines strategies to help strengthen families: setting realistic orders, responding to changing circumstances & debt forgiveness. Presenters: Lori Lofranzo, Dept. of Corrections, St. Cloud; Pat Krauth and Mike Caris, Dept. of Human Services, St. Paul.

Policy Keynote & Awards Dinner 5:30 – 7:30 PM

The Evolution of Consciousness in Family Policy (Stockinger Suite) Judge Bruce Peterson, Hennepin County Family Court

Introduction: Dr. Glen Palm, Past President MFFN Board

Judge Peterson has worked extensively with community groups on issues of co-parenting, healthy fatherhood, and the Recognition of Parentage. He previously served as presiding judge of family court and served in both civil and criminal court. His keynote will explore the role of courts in making decisions that affect families.

Excellence in Fatherhood Policy and Practice Awards Ceremony: Awards Presenters: Jan Hayne and Dwaine Simms, MFFN Board of Directors

Evening Gatherings in a Relaxed Setting 7:45 – 9:00 PM

Story Circles: Tapping the Power of Personal Storytelling (Clarke Room, 2nd Floor) This interactive session will offer an opportunity to participate in the powerful experience of telling our own stories. Through sharing of experiences of one’s father, being a father, or being fathered, you will experience the power of each narrative. Presenters will share stories to illustrate the policy and educational issues that touch our lives. It will be an opportunity for participants to reach a level of interaction that is both respectful and fulfilling—providing energy to sustain us in this challenging work. Confidentiality is expected. Presenters: DeeAnn Gieseke, Qigong Practitioner, Sleepy Eye; Dr. John Wallace, University of Minnesota

Open Conversation on Raising Healthy Men (First American Room, Floor) Join this open conversation in a comfortable, relaxed setting. View excerpts from the PBS documentary "Raising Cain, Boys in Focus," which explores the emotional development of boys in America today. Come with your ideas, insights or just your ears, and be part of an open dialogue on how we can all be proactive in raising healthy men. Facilitators: Clarence Jones, Q Health Services; Jan Hayne, Dads Make A Difference
Plan to arrive early to have time to register, enjoy a continental breakfast, and browse the Fatherhood Services Resource Tables. These exhibitors offer valuable information for fatherhood & family service practitioners and advocates across Minnesota. The exhibits will be open until 3:00 PM today.

It’s Hard Out Here for a Pop: Stereotypes, Silence & The Socialization of Future Fathers (Herberger Suite, 2nd Floor)

Dr. Leola Johnson, Associate Professor and Chair of Humanities and Media and Cultural Studies, Macalester College, St. Paul, MN

Joe Kelly, Author, Dads & Daughters and Idiot’s Guide to Being A New Dad

Playing off the Oscar-winning song "It's hard out here for a pimp," the presentation identifies deeply entrenched cultural values and expectations (like father-silence) that leave boys and men un- or under-prepared to be effective dads, stepdads and social fathers. Mainstream media sound & image will help illustrate the impact that "hip-hop" culture and "pseudo-sexualization" messages have on current and future fathers.

Male Socialization 101 (First American Room, 2nd Floor) Boys are typically exposed to a number of socialization influences at an early age: parents and other adults, peers, and media. Some of these influences are positive (e.g., role models of adults who are capable of task orientation and emotional awareness), some are benign (e.g., some aspects of sports culture), and some are toxic (e.g., those that encourage violence or disrespect of women). In this workshop, we describe the effects of socialization on boys and explore strategies for inoculating them against toxic social influences. Presenter: Dr. Christopher Kilmartin, University of Mary Washington, Virginia.

System Navigation and Case Management for Non-custodial Parents: How Do You Get a Horse to Drink After You Have Led Him to Water? (Bell Room, 1st Floor) Child support is not an endearing term for many noncustodial parents. The legislature, government agencies and courts can legislate, mandate, obligate, and withhold funds for child support payments. But is there another approach? Is there some way of giving hope to those who see no hope for changing their situations? Many noncustodial parents express the belief that county agencies only care about the parent’s money. In this session, learn how communities are working to change the face of child support. Chisago County’s novel approach employs a social worker for noncustodial parents to help them navigate the child support system and the county’s interrelated systems of services and support. Come learn their ideas, procedures, and results helping noncustodial parents drink from the water of success. Presenters: Elizabeth Dodge and Elvin Braman, Chisago County Social Services; Chisago County Case Participants.

Fathers Impacting Infant Health and Safety (Alexander Room, 1st Floor) Research increasingly points to the important role of fathers in supporting healthy maternal and infant health. Both during prenatal and neonatal development, men have an important role to play in supporting the mothers of their children, encouraging full-family health, and role modeling supportive behaviors. In this session, presenters will share strategies for encouraging father involvement at this critical stage of development and for changing the language around “maternal and child health” to be more father-friendly.

Helping Sons Heal the Effects of Their Fathers’ Shame Wounds (Weidner Room, 1st Floor) Many men carry in their hearts and souls the unhealed wounds of their fathers. If Dad was abused, neglected, abandoned, or shamed, his internal pain may be transmitted viscerally to his son. The son often unknowingly acts out father-wound pain through drug abuse, addiction, depression, violence, and other self-sabotaging behaviors. Through the processes of identification and internalization, unhealed father wounds become a son’s legacy. Using video, visualization, writing and discussion, this session will explore the wounds of our fathers, and how they may have been transmitted to us and the men in our programs. Attendees will discover that sons do not need to live out their fathers’ personal woundedness. Presenter: Dr. Michael Obsatz, Macalester College (Emeritus), St. Paul.

The Importance of Father Involvement in His Child’s ADD/ADHD Therapy (Clarke Room, 1st Floor) Millions of children are diagnosed with Attention-Deficit Disorder (ADD) or Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD). Yet many parents and teachers don’t understand how ADD/ADHD affects children. Attendees will discuss how ADD/ADHD affects boys and girls differently and the latest research regarding effective treatment. Plus, learn the benefits of having ADD/ADHD! Research and experience have discovered that there are unique gifts and abilities that come as a result of having ADD/ADHD. Participants will discuss how fathers can help children discover and make use of these gifts. The different parenting styles of mothers and fathers have a profound effect on nurturing ADD/ADHD children. Presenter: Dr. Randell Turner, Senior Associate Child & Family Therapist, ICF International, Red Lion, Pennsylvania.

Concurrent Sessions IV
1:30 – 2:45 PM

How the 5 Protective Factors Promote Gender Balanced Parenting (Alexander Room, 1st Floor) Fathers’ roles as parents are often portrayed as being external in terms of support to their children. Yet, dads play a significant role in upholding the five protective factors that contribute to child wellbeing. This workshop is designed to promote and clarify nurturing, concrete roles for fathers in families. In this workshop, presenters will use a combination of hands-on activities, presentation, discussion, and stories so that participants will: Understand what the five protective factors are and how fathers can use these to promote healthy child development; Learn how to facilitate gender balance in parenting; Learn how Circle of Parents® can support fathers. Presenter: Trina Levin, Prevent Child Abuse Minnesota, St. Paul.

Stress Reducing Techniques that Can Work for You and Your Clients (First American Room, 2nd Floor) How do you and/or men you work with as clients respond to stress? What you are thinking and the words you speak have a profound effect on yourself, others and the world around you. The good news: you already have the tools to make a difference! In this workshop you will have an opportunity to visually see that your words and thoughts have energy. You will participate in breathing exercises that restore energy to your body, reduce stress and promote peace and harmony within and become aware of the healing power of your breath. Wear comfortable clothes. You may sit or recline. Presenter: DeeAnn Gieseke, Qigong Practitioner, Sleepy Eye.

Community Prevention: Coaching Boys Into Men (Weidner Room, 1st Floor) How do we get people in our community aware and tuned into the messages about violence prevention? How do we let the boys in our community know what constitutes a healthy relationship? This workshop will provide participants with one organization’s plan to get these issues in the public eye. Participants will learn about a national public awareness campaign, researched and developed by the Family Violence Prevention Fund, and currently being utilized by the Domestic Violence Council of Anoka County and their community partners. Discussion will address how the campaign has been implemented, learn about the three-year plan to reinforce these messages, and engage in discussion as to how this effort may be implemented in other communities. Presenter: Donna McDonald, Violence Prevention Coordinator, Anoka County Community Health & Environmental Services.
Nurturing the Fathers of the Future: How American Religious Discourse Socializes Men (Bell Room, 1st Floor) Today’s youth will become tomorrow’s fathers. As they journey toward becoming fathers, they are faced with many contradictory messages in culture, tradition, academia, and the church about what it means to be a father and what a father’s priorities should be in relation to his family – especially his children. What do American cultural norms, traditional gender roles, current academic research, and religious expression teach us about the father’s role in his family, particularly as it relates to parenting and child development? How do we make sense of the contradictions and empower tomorrow’s fathers to live confidently in their roles as involved and nurturing parents? Presenter: Dr. Gar Kellom, Men’s Center, Saint John’s University, Collegeville.

Getting Dads Through the Door – Realistic Father Involvement (Clarke Room, 1st Floor) Many programs are interested in working with fathers but aren’t sure how to effectively work with them or even “get a hold” of them. Learn how to bring fathers into your programs and what to do with them once they come through the door. Participants will learn how to build their own effective program without having to buy expensive curricula that don’t always fit their needs. This fun, interactive workshop will show you how to effectively involve fathers in their child’s education in order to improve their educational and social outcomes. Presenter: J. Michael Hall, Strong Fathers-Strong Families, Fort Worth, Texas.

Afternoon Keynote 3:00 – 4:30 PM

Mission Critical: Raising Healthy, Nonviolent Boys and Men (Herberger Suite, 2nd Floor)

Dr. Michael Obsatz, Professor Emeritus, Macalester College, St. Paul, Minnesota

Opening Remarks: Joanne Mooney, Children’s Trust Fund

Introductions: Jon Harper, MFFN Board

Dr. Michael Obsatz is a well-known author and speaker on issues such as male socialization and shame-based masculinity, anger and bullying in kids, and coping with grief and loss. His keynote will focus on the connection between male socialization and male violence, and provide us with some practical tips for helping to raise healthy, nonviolent boys and men.
