The mission of the Minnesota Fathers & Families Network, as a statewide network, is to initiate, promote and support effective programs and to educate on public policy to enhance the responsible involvement of fathers in the lives of children, families and the community.
Dear friends,

Since 2002, the Minnesota Fathers & Families Network has been reaching across boundaries to share the message that healthy fatherhood leads to healthy children, healthy families, and a healthier Minnesota.

We have been determined to stay away from labels that narrow our focus or cloud our views. Healthy, positive fatherhood is not an issue of one political ideology, of one geographic region, of one socio-economic group, or of one gender. We believe in the simple principle that healthy fathers support healthy child development.

Increasingly, we believe that many men and women are placing a higher value on the father’s role as a mentor, a role model, and a co-parent. We believe that healthy fatherhood complements healthy motherhood; without regard to family structure, religion, or ethnicity.

Clearly, our work is still in its infancy. Too many of Minnesota’s children are raised without the strong father-figures that they need. Too many fathers lack the social supports to learn how to raise their children. Too many incarcerated fathers are isolated from their children; too many divorced fathers lack adequate parenting time; too many working fathers cannot afford child care and health insurance. Throughout Minnesota, there is a lack of resources for single fathers, gay fathers, foster fathers, teen fathers, grandparents, and all of the social fathers that could potentially support the development of healthy children and adolescents.

Throughout our history, the Minnesota Fathers & Families Network has reached out to a broad group of professionals who are advocating for positive father involvement. In the coming year, we hope to expand our reach to include more educators, social service workers, public policy makers, and other Minnesotans who will advocate for healthy children by promoting fatherhood.

The strength of any movement is in its ability to spread the message. We hope that you will join us in 2006 and beyond.

Sincerely,

R. Clarence Jones       A. Paul Masiarchin
Board President       State Coordinator

Promoting healthy fatherhood
Professional Development Events

- Minnesota Fatherhood Summit: MFFN hosted its second annual winter conference in St. Cloud in Jan. 2005. The one-and-a-half day conference featured keynote presentations by Dr. Mitch Pearlstein from Center of the American Experiment; Dwaine Simms from African American Men Project; and Dr. Martha Erickson from Univ. of Minnesota. 225 attendees from across Minnesota participated in a dozen workshop sessions focusing on healthy fatherhood. MFFN held its third conference in Jan. 2006.

- Sessions on Dads and Early Literacy Development: Throughout the fall, MFFN collaborated with the Minn. Humanities Commission, St. Cloud State Univ., Southside Community Health Services, and the Minn. Initiative Foundations to host its fourth annual Fall Seminar Series. The half day training sessions, with presentations in seven cities, were attended by 220 early educators, health professionals, and fatherhood advocates. As a result of the sessions, over 40 communities developed literacy programs, reaching nearly 2,000 dads and kids.

- Male Socialization Roundtable: In February, MFFN hosted the first of two roundtable meetings sponsored by MOAPPP public policy committee in support of teen pregnancy and healthy youth development.

- Roundtable Meeting on Fathers Transitioning from Corrections: The second Bremer-funded roundtable provided an opportunity for more than 70 fatherhood advocates to focus on issues of incarceration and healthy re-entry of fathers into families.

- Conference Workshops and Exhibits: Throughout 2005, MFFN presented workshops and/or displayed exhibit booths at a dozen professional conferences including Minn. Social Services Association (MSSA), Minn. Organization on Adolescent Pregnancy, Prevention and Parenting (MOAPPP), the Communities Collaborative Brain Development Conference in Mahnomen, the Minn. Council on Family Relations (MCFR), the Association of Guardians Ad Litem, Prevent Child Abuse Minn., and various others.

Radio Stories: Throughout 2005, the Minnesota News Connection produced a total of nine radio stories in collaboration with MFFN. These stories aired on a combined total of approximately 500 radio stations across the Upper Midwest; plus, some of the stories received national coverage. Additionally, MFFN staff and board members were interviewed locally by radio stations in the Twin Cities and Greater Minnesota.

Website: MFFN’s Internet portal, www.mnfathers.org, was accessed by nearly 17,000 unique visitors (many visited more than one time) who accessed a combined total of over 200,000 files. According to the director of the fatherhood pages on About.com, the MFFN site “is one of the best statewide sites for fathers that I have seen.”

Minnesota Excellence in Fatherhood Awards: In January 2005, MFFN recognized five programs and individuals who are leading the advancement of fatherhood policy and practice. The Award Recipients were: Visionary: Mary L. Anderson; Individual of the Year: John Turnipseed; Agency of the Year: Minnesota Humanities Commission, Family Literacy Initiatives; Advocate of the Year: Louis Hohlfeld; and Member of the Year: Glen Palm. In January 2006, MFFN again presented five Excellence in Fatherhood Awards.
Collaborative Efforts

- Minnesota Festival for Fathers & Families: MFFN co-chaired the 15th annual celebration of fatherhood in North Minneapolis in 2005, working in collaboration with two-dozen sponsoring agencies. Over 700 attendees participated in the free events including lunch, a T-shirt for every father, resource tents of family services, an awards ceremony for healthy fatherhood, pony rides, a petting zoo, a moon bounce, family photographs, birdhouse construction, a children’s book giveaway, and much more.

- Statewide Meetings: MFFN staff met with a wide range of organizations throughout the year including early childhood education advisory councils, county-based family services collaboratives, a children’s mental health advisory council, various fatherhood programs, fatherhood networking groups, Head Start parents groups, and other organizations.

“Finally, something that will really make a difference. We are very interested in doing this in our community!”

- Hennepin County Teen Parent Connection: MFFN is active with the Fathers Working Group of the Teen Parent Connection. This group is leading a plan to create a coordinated system that identifies and serves all fathers of babies born to teen moms in Hennepin County.

- Children’s Justice Initiative – Alcohol and Other Drug Project: MFFN assisted a workgroup of professionals from Minnesota which convened to develop guidelines for father’s services in relation to chemical health. The workgroup was supported by the Minn. Supreme Court and National Center for Substance Abuse and Child Welfare.

- SHAPE: Survey of the Health of All Residents, the Population, and the Environment: MFFN participated in the development of the 2006 SHAPE survey. Data from the survey is used to assess the health and disparities that exist in Hennepin County; the data guides policy and program development.

- Fatherhood Training Video: A filmmaker from Olive Branch Productions met with MFFN to seek input for a training video / documentary film for the Spaulding Institute of Michigan. The film, currently in production, will discuss the issue of how health care workers can help fathers to be more involved in potential adoption decisions.

MFFN Principles

The Minnesota Fathers & Families Network believes in the following principles:

- Fathers are an essential resource in building healthy families as a context for child growth and development.
- Fathers and mothers both have primary responsibility for supporting, nurturing and guiding their children’s learning and development.
- Family education and support services systems in Minnesota should provide equal opportunities for fathers and mothers to enhance and develop their capacity as responsible parents.
- Agencies should work in a collaborative manner to identify and address the needs of men and to support responsible fatherhood.
- Agencies and practitioners providing family services should form respectful and culturally sensitive relationships with fathers and families.
- Fatherhood practitioners and advocates can enhance services to fathers and families through increased opportunities for collaboration, training and education.
- For children and families to thrive, the whole community – families and individuals, non-profits, public systems, policy makers, the private sector and funders – needs to work in partnership.
- MFFN is a nonpartisan membership organization that works with other organizations to support fathers and families in Minnesota.

“I really never thought about how much we tend to ignore the fathers when it comes to the children. [One of the presenter’s] words from the conference really stuck with me: “Expect male involvement.” This has changed the way I do my [work].”
